MS in Accountancy | A new level of clarity.

The backbone of business.

In a business environment that can change overnight, accountants provide clarity about the bottom line. Our top-ranked MS in Accountancy program is unique: It integrates the study of finance and economics into accounting research and academics. Simon graduates are skilled in applying accounting principles to the demanding realities of global business.

The MS in Accountancy coursework includes financial reporting, taxation, auditing, information systems, financial statement analysis, and accounting research. Students conduct research using FASB Accounting Standards Codification, IFRS, and tax regulations.

Simon is all about the numbers. But we're more. Our students work in teams—gaining collaborative skills as leaders and problem solvers for both public accounting firms and corporations.

Simon's accounting graduates earn 150 credit hours, meeting the stringent requirements for CPA licensure in New York and many other states.

We look forward to connecting you with top MS talent.

Our students are available for full-time positions, and all Simon programs offer internship options.
